Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Monday 31 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Warm sunshine. East coast haar.

Today:
It will be dry and sunny across most of Scotland, but haar may linger along some northeastern coasts and perhaps the Northern Isles. Becoming warm, locally very warm in the northwest. Southeasterly winds fresh around some coasts.

Tonight:
A dry and sunny end to the day for most, then clear skies overnight. However, haar will become more extensive around North Sea coasts, nudging inland in places.

Tuesday:
A dry, warm and sunny day across much of the country, locally very warm. Haar is likely around around some North Sea coasts, mainly the northeast and Northern Isles. Breezy.

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Remaining dry, warm and sunny on Wednesday, although patchy haar will affect the east coast. Still plenty of dry and bright weather on Thursday and Friday, but showery rain too.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.